URBAN DESIGN IN PRACTICE

Join fellow professionals for thought-provoking roundtable dialogues and a design charrette on urban design theories, process and products. Through case studies from local and international projects, participants will explore practical paradigms for planning and developing urban and suburban developments.

Participants will hear from a team of experts in the field of urbanism as they discuss topics such as urban design in context, theories and paradigms in developing new communities and urban intensification. The discussions will also include the planning history of Ottawa, Ottawa's Greenfield development, and Ottawa's recent experiences in urban intensification. The course will culminate with a Design Charrette on an intensification and/or greenfield site in Ottawa.
