PRESIDENT'S REPORT

As President for 2011 I am pleased to report on the activities of the Board and the RAIC during the past year. The role of President and Board member was made all the easier thanks to the hard work of our new Executive Director, Jim McKee, and all the other staff at the Ottawa office. I would also like to thank my fellow board members, volunteers and colleagues in allied organizations for their guidance and advice during my year as President.

This was our first year utilizing the calendar year for terms of office rather than the old system of running terms from Festival to Festival. This allows us to have board terms corresponding to the financial reporting calendar rather than picking it up half way through.

Priorities the Board tackled in 2011

Working with the provincial regulators on the Broadly Experienced Foreign Architects Program – a project ongoing throughout 2011 with a goal of completing the work in 2012 – the RAIC has been facilitating discussions by regulators by administering federal government funding for the work, and conducting roundtable meetings. The end result will be a system that will evaluate experienced foreign trained architects, that is supported by all the Canadian Architectural licensing bodies as an alternative path to registration in Canada. The hard work completed by the BEFA task force has been outstanding and through the pilot phase a number of candidates have already obtained licences in a number of jurisdictions because of this work.

The Syllabus Renewal initiative continued throughout the year with clarification as to the role of the profession in the alternative system of education that we at the RAIC have guided for 40 years. With our partners at Athabasca University handling the academic distance learning through the RAIC Centre for Architecture, we will be overseeing the office experience and design studio portions of the program, as well as providing ongoing input to the academic component delivered through the Centre. The last year has seen our former executive director Jon Hobbs, FRAIC, coordinating renewal of the design studio modules and supporting completion of a suite of technical courses pulled together by Don Ardiel, FRAIC, our hard-working current president David Craddock, FRAIC, keeping all the differing interests focused on the goal of renewal, and Jim McKee and everyone at RAIC communicating, organizing, financing and striving to keep this important initiative moving forward. Special thanks to the Syllabus design coordinator and mentor community, the examiners, advisory committee members and student representatives. And not to be forgotten the staff at Syllabus – Registrar Jeanné Fox, Hon. MRAIC and Administrative Assistant September Stokes, must be recognized for their dedication and commitment to the program’s long history. Without all of their hard work, we wouldn’t have a program to renew.

Both these initiatives have been and will continue to be priorities for the Board.

As these initiatives have moved forward, we started looking at how we can increase value for our members by making membership in Architecture Canada | RAIC even more worthwhile. In this regard, our ongoing presentation of case study projects achieving or exceeding the current energy-efficiency targets of the 2030 Challenge, our involvement in document development through our practice committee and representatives on the Canadian Construction Documents Committee (CCDC), which resulted in updated and new contract documents, the advocacy of the profession at both the national and local level, and lobbying for architecture and architects, are just a few examples of the work the RAIC conducts on a regular basis. We also have been looking at more ways the RAIC can provide and facilitate our members in their professional development and continuing education. We are looking into interesting membership benefits and learning new ideas from some of our colleagues around the world.

Architecture Canada | RAIC continues to work to get the idea that Architecture matters to as many people and organizations as possible, to involve students, interns, practitioners in the profession, to partner with our regulatory colleagues to help the profession grow. With the work we are doing, we need the profession’s support, and that support would be stronger if more architects chose to become members of Architecture Canada | RAIC. So I ask members to talk to their colleagues, keep them informed of the value of membership, and encourage them to join. Imagine how much louder our voice would be if all the Architects in Canada were speaking together.

Thank you again for your support, and I wish everyone a successful year.

Stuart Howard PP/FRAIC

Past President, Architecture Canada | RAIC

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S REPORT

The year 2011 was eventful for Architecture Canada | RAIC on several fronts. We implemented our new model for partnering with provincial associations to present our annual Festival – and confirmed locations for not only the 2012 Festival in St. John's, but also 2013 (Halifax) and 2014 (Winnipeg), as well as initiating planning with senior leadership of the American Institute of Architects to present our Festival at the time of the AIA Convention planned for Toronto in 2017. In addition, we pursued discussions through 2011 that culminated in the decision to partner with Interior Designers Canada (IDC) and IIDEX to incorporate a dedicated Architecture Canada Expo as part of the largest national design showcase in the country – IIDEX NeoCon.

In 2011, we completed the transition to a new member services portal based on open-source technologies (Drupal and CiviCRM); it has not been without its challenges but going forward this platform offers capabilities to provide more extensive and tailored services to our members. While the Architecture Canada | RAIC membership trendline has been upward for the past decade – by December 31 we had more than 4,500 members, compared with 2,500 in 2001. In 2011, the RAIC Board decided the time was right to retain an external consultant to carry out an audit of our member service offer and recommend refinements with a view to consolidating and building on that growth.

RAIC's advocacy work remained central to its activities in 2011. This included taking part in regular discussions on federal procurement discussions as part of the Federal/Industry Real Property Advisory Council (FIRPAC), as well as providing input to a Public Works and Government Services Canada (PWGSC) consultation with respect to its Alternative Forms of Delivery model for property management services for a vast inventory of federally owned buildings across the country.

In 2011, RAIC's most visible public advocacy initiative was its launch of the fundraising campaign in support of Canada's representative at the 2012 Venice Biennale for Architecture. The Venice Biennale is often referred to as the 'Olympics of Architecture' – it is the most important international architectural competition in the world, one in which more than 50 countries are represented and attended by more than 170,000 visitors – including more than 5,000 journalists during the three-day vernissage that kicks off the Biennale. Canada's 2012 representative, Migrating Landscapes, conceived and curated by three young architects and designers based in Winnipeg – Johanna Hurme, MRAIC, Sasa Radulovic, MRAIC, and Jae-Sung Chon is uniquely Canadian in its exploration of themes of cultural memory, landscape, and adaptation. It has been warmly embraced by the profession as an opportunity to showcase the new generation of Canadian architects on the international stage.

Practice Support remains a pillar of RAIC's program. In 2011, RAIC was an active founding member of the Institute for BIM in Canada (IBC), which in just one short year of existence has produced an environmental scan of BIM-related technologies currently in use, a survey providing a snapshot of the state of BIM implementation in Canada, and acquired the status of Canadian Chapter of Building Smart International, ensuring Canada will have a voice in the creation of international standards for the development of BIM. Also in 2011, after several years' hard work our representatives on the Canadian Construction Documents Committee – CCDC – helped move to completion updated versions of the Design-Build suite of documents (CCDC 14 and 15) – these were released for final endorsement by constituent members of the Construction Industry Consultative Committee (CICC) in early 2012.

Finally, Architecture Canada | RAIC continued to work to raise awareness of the importance of integrating sustainable design approaches into the built environment. At the 2011 Festival in Vancouver, Architecture 2030 founder Ed Mazria, Hon. FRAIC, provided an inspiring update on the developments associated with this initiative – and of the potential beneficial impact if the challenge is realized on a broad scale across North America and the world. In 2011, RAIC began publishing the first in an initial series of case studies of completed projects that meet or exceed – based on actual operational performance data – current targets of the 2030 Challenge. RAIC's 2030 Challenge Advisor was also able to make presentations to several audiences – including federal procurement decision-makers during the year. And with a view to reaching a broader audience of public and private clients, we devoted RAIC's Architecture magazine to showcasing the achievements of the 2030 case study projects as well.

It is all in an effort to highlight the profession, to allied communities and to society at large, that Architecture matters... today and, most certainly, as it impacts the future.

Governor General's Medals in Architecture

In fall 2011, Architecture Canada issued a Call for Submissions for the Governor General's Medals in Architecture. The Awards will be adjudicated in early 2012.

RAIC Gold Medal

The RAIC Gold Medal is awarded in recognition of significant contribution to Canadian architecture, and is the highest honour the profession of architecture in Canada can bestow. It recognizes an individual whose personal work has demonstrated exceptional excellence in the design and practice of architecture; and/or, whose work related to architecture, has demonstrated exceptional excellence in research or education.

Bing Thom, FRAIC, was the recipient of the 2011 Gold Medal. In bestowing the award, the Gold Medal Selection Committee noted:

“The work of few practitioners fulfills the spirit and intent of the RAIC Gold Medal as Bing Thom’s does. It is generally understood that the Gold Medal should recognize and honour a life’s work: Work that is noteworthy, instructive, influential, and at its best extra-ordinary. Mr. Thom’s work addresses all of these interests.

At the level of craft it is consistently pushing the boundaries of technique and use of materials, generating a recurrent sense of substance and quality. Truly noteworthy work in architecture must take us to a place beyond this, a place that is visceral, difficult to define, yet obvious in its presence. Bing Thom’s work does this. It is good, and fulfilling to experience. It can be inspirational. It leaves one with worthwhile memories. It has long been worth honouring.”

Prix du XX^e siècle

The Prix du XX^e siècle recognizes the enduring excellence of nationally significant architecture, such as landmark buildings in the historical context of Canadian Architecture. The award can go to a building in Canada, designed by an architect from any country, or a building anywhere designed by a Canadian architect.

Young Architect Award

This award is to recognize a young architect for excellence in design, leadership and/or service to the profession. It is intended that this award will inspire other young architects to become licensed and to strive for excellence in their work.

Taymoore Balbaa, MRAIC, was the first recipient of its Young Architect Award.

In choosing Taymoore Balbaa, the Jury stated that it recognized “his impressive early achievements in the profession” and that he is an “exciting young architect with exceptional potential.”

Architectural Firm Award

This award recognizes an architectural firm or practice that has consistently produced distinguished architecture. The award recognizes the achievements of the firm for its quality of architecture, its service to its clients, its innovations in practice, contributions to architectural education and to professional institutions and associations and public recognition.

Montgomery Sisam Architects Inc. was the recipient of the 2011 Architectural Firm Award. In bestowing the award, the Selection Committee noted:

Ontario Mission of the Deaf

“The folio put forward by Montgomery Sisam Architects described a practice that demonstrated cumulative decades of depth, breadth, and richness in an architectural practice. Their tendency to focus on work of social significance, their maintained support for education and development of their employees over a long period of time, and their consistent involvement of both staff and principals in community and professional affairs describes a practice with a vision, purpose, and ethic. The resulting work recurrently evidenced achievements that are competent, thoughtful, often delightful, and in many cases addressing programs that were complex and technically challenging.”

Advocacy

Federal

The RAIC Board of Directors and Executive Director advocated on a wide range of issues. Throughout the year letters were sent as follows:

- To the Right Honourable Stephen Harper, Prime Minister of Canada, (March 4, 2011) commending the efforts of Public Works in commissioning the design of the buildings comprising the Parliamentary Precinct in Ottawa.
- To the Honourable Diane Finley Minister, Human Resources and Skills Development Human Resources and Skills Development Canada, (March 11, 2011) providing an update on the status of the BEFA project.
- To the Right Honourable Stephen Harper, Prime Minister of Canada, (April 21, 2011) following the election outlining the following issues key as to the profession: Environmental Sustainability and the Built Environment; Protecting Architectural Heritage; and, Seizing Opportunities to Highlight Canadian Architectural Excellence.

Federal Government Procurement

Thanks to the generous contributions of time and expertise by Peter J. Kindree, FRAIC, Deborah Farrow, MRAIC, John Hackett, FRAIC, and Board Liaison Allan Teramura, MRAIC, Architecture Canada | RAIC maintained a strong voice at the Federal Industry Real Property Advisory Council (FIRPAC) meetings. The Council this year was also supported by François Hogue, MIRAC, who was added to Architecture Canada | RAIC's Practice Support team to offer expertise to the membership.

The RAIC Federal Government Procurement Council engages most Federal Government departments that engage architectural services. This year's meetings focused on AFD – Alternate Forms of Delivery; Multiple Submissions by Professional Service Contractors; Bidding Next Phase – by Professional Service Contractors and included ongoing discussions on Government requirements for bilingual documents; streamlining Industrial Security; the Claims Process and Resolution; and the Re-use of Design Documents.

During the year RAIC representatives – Peter J. Kindree, FRAIC, Deborah Farrow, MRAIC, and Gerrie Doyle, MRAIC, participated in a national consultation by Public Works and Government Services Canada concerning its Alternative Forms of Delivery contracting framework. The group also provided a written response on how its Real Property-1 program is administered and addressed a number of issues relating to how architectural services are contracted under the current RP1 framework.

As a result of RAIC's participation in FIRPAC, subsequent meetings with Defence Construction Canada as well as SNC Lavalin O & M were arranged to discuss procurement and contract issues in greater detail. Progress and understanding with each of these client organizations is an ongoing process.

2030 Challenge

As part of Architecture Canada | RAIC's commitment to the 2030 Challenge a website was created highlighting the best energy-efficient commercial buildings that have been constructed in Canada. Each month new projects were added and featured in the Bulletin.

The 2030 Challenge calls for design activities that will significantly reduce the greenhouse gas emissions of new and renovated Canadian buildings, and the Case Studies website highlights the information and technology that supports the Challenge.

Projects have been added throughout the year and members are encouraged to check back often to see what new strides are being taken by Canadian Architects.

Advocacy Magazine Architecture

The focus of RAIC's advocacy publication, Architecture: A magazine for public and institutional administrators, continued to concentrate on highlighting 2030 Challenge projects to members of both the RAIC and Canada Green Building Council members.

The Winter/Spring edition featured Stageline and St. Gabriel's Church as initial entries to the 2030 Challenge web site as it was just being developed.

The focus of the Summer/Fall issue was education – highlighting Simon Fraser University's Arts and Social Sciences Complex, École Lawrence Grassi Middle School in Canmore, and the Joggins Fossil Centre. The issue was sent to that sector as well as reaching the profession at large.

The goal of the advocacy magazine is for members to use them as a means of educating clients and owners about the important role architects and architectural design and quality plays in their sector – ensuring the message is heard that Architecture matters ...

Communications

Late in the year RAIC began harnessing revenues by adding advertising to the Bulletin and the Services Portal.

This unique opportunity was quickly embraced in the Bulletin by Cloverdale Paint, Firestone Building Products Canada, Hanson Brick, IMAGINit Technologies; and on the Services Portal by Amyvic Building Systems, Canada Green Building Council, Graphisoft North America, Schluter Systems, and StonCor Canada.

The Bulletin – Electronic Newsletter

The Bulletin, distributed by email, continued to offer members news relevant to the profession in short segments offering further information to the reader – presented with a clean crisp design and colourful images.

The goal of the Bulletin is to foster a sense of community while keeping everyone informed of news related to the profession, and RAIC's efforts and activities.

Canadian Architect newsletter

The Architecture Canada | RAIC newsletter insert Update/En Bref appeared quarterly in 2011 highlighting the activities of the RAIC to all architects in Canada. Subscriptions to Canadian Architect are available to RAIC members residing in Canada at no cost.

Website

The members section of the website was completely revamped in 2011 with the introduction of a new on-line Services Portal adding a modern and updated Store and a dedicated Events Registration section.

All Membership records were moved to the new system and members received an email with new access usernames and passwords.

Using the Services Portal members continue to be able to change their Membership information, purchase products at Member Discounts, and access exclusive third-party discounts.

Electronic notices

Electronic notices were sent throughout the year as needed to members reminding them of important events and deadlines.

Columns in Industry Journals

In an effort to spread the message about the profession across many audiences, arrangements have been made which allow columns written by various members of the Board of Directors to be inserted into several professional trade journals.

In 2011 Architecture Canada | RAIC added a fourth channel – a bi-monthly column in the Canadian Journal of Green Building & Design along with a monthly column in the Daily Commercial News/Journal of Commerce, and bi-monthly in Sustainable Architecture & Building (SABMag) and AWARD Magazine. Copies of the columns are highlighted each month in the electronic Bulletin.

Every Building has an Architect

T-shirts continue to be available to members and members are encouraged to let everyone know Architecture matters ...

Early in the year Melissa McAlister, MRAIC, noticed an article in the Thunder Bay Chronicle Journal criticizing a selection of buildings from an artistic perspective, and failing to credit the architects who designed the buildings featured. Her letter resulted in a printed correction and helped the spread of the crucial message that Every Building has an Architect.

every book has an author
every dress has a designer
every painting has an artist
every orchestra has a conductor every dance has a choreographer
every screenplay has a writer
every building has an architect
every opera has a composer
every film has a director
every magazine has an editor
every sculpture has a sculptor

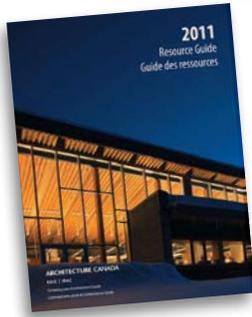

...architecture matters
ARCHITECTURE CANADA
RAIC 11046

Efforts like these by RAIC members at the local level are critical to advancing the Every Building Has an Architect Campaign.

Membership

As of December 31, 2011, Architecture Canada | RAIC had 4,540 members. In 2011, there were a total of 482 new members, more than the amount of new members in 2009 (421) and 2010 (399).

The RAIC offered free membership to all 2010/2011 graduates from an accredited professional degree program in Architecture in Canada. By December 31, 2011, 54 graduates had responded to the offer, more than twice as many as the previous year. RAIC also offered free student associate membership to students in a Master of Architecture program – 94 students responded to the offer.

2011 Membership Directory

For the seventh year, Architecture Canada published an annual membership directory through an arrangement with Naylor publications. This agreement allows the Naylor sales team to promote Architecture Canada and enables all costs to be recovered. In return, Architecture Canada members receive a printed annual directory.

External Relations

National Affairs

In 2011 RAIC continued to maintain close working relationships with its colleagues the provincial/territorial regulators and the Canadian Architectural Certification Board (CACB). Regular Roundtables with the provincial and territorial regulators continued to discuss issues of common concern and to explore possibilities for joint action.

In 2011, the principal initiative on the National Affairs agenda was RAIC's role as financial administrator for $1.6 million in federal funding provided by Human Resources and Skills Development Canada to develop and implement a framework for assessing the competencies of Broadly Experienced Foreign Architects (BEFA). By shifting the assessment to focus principally on competencies, the objective is to provide BEFA candidates with a path to practice while ensuring Canadian standards are upheld. Program development continued throughout 2011, with the objective of the program being launched and delivered through the CACB in the final quarter of calendar 2012.

International Affairs

In 2011, RAIC was represented at the annual Convention of the American Institute of Architects held in New Orleans in May by President Stuart Howard, FRAIC, and Executive Director Jim McKee. Mr. Howard also represented RAIC at the annual Convention of the Royal Australian Institute of Architects held in Melbourne, also in May.

The 24th Congress of the International Union of Architects took place in Tokyo September 25 – October 1. RAIC President Stuart Howard, FRAIC, headed a delegation that included Past President Randy Dhar, PP/FRAIC, Second Vice President Paul Frank, FRAIC, and Executive Director Jim McKee. Much of the discussions at the UIA Congress focused on work it is carrying out to strengthen university programs and internship programs in developing countries, but the Congresses also serve as occasions to elect the UIA's Bureau and Council, as well as select the cities that will host future Congresses. Canada's Randy Dhar, PP/FRAIC was acclaimed to the UIA Council as one of the profession's representatives from Region III (Americas), joining Tom Vonier of the AIA, who was elected Vice-President for the Region. With Durban previously selected to host the 2014 Congress, Seoul Korea was selected to present the Congress in 2017.

Venice Biennale in Architecture

The Venice Biennale in Architecture is the single most important and prestigious international event in contemporary architecture; it is to architecture what the Olympics are to sports. From late August 2012 to November 2012, more than 50 countries are expected to bring their architectural finest to Venice to compete with each other for the coveted Golden Lion Award for best national exhibition.

MIGRATING LANDSCAPES

Building on the success of Canada as a serious contender after attracting global attention in 2010 with "Hylozoic Ground", Migrating Landscapes by 5468796 Architecture and Jae-Sung Chon was chosen as Canada's official entry at the 2012 Venice Biennale in Architecture.

Migrating Landscapes examines how Canadians express their diverse cultural memories in designs for contemporary housing. To do this, its young organizers, all born outside of Canada, will design a 'new landscape' as an exhibition infrastructure and invite other young Canadian architects and designers to respond to it with designs for housing based on their cultural memories. These designs will be 'settled' into the 'new landscape', and together form the exhibition at the Canada Pavilion in Venice.

By late in 2011 the project had held the first two of several Canadian exhibitions and garnered strong attention from sponsors and participation by 119 entrants from across Canada.

Architecture Canada | RAIC wishes to thank the Canada Council for the Arts (CCA) for providing a special partnership grant enabling RAIC to retain a dedicated project manager/fundraiser in support of Canada's presence at the 2012 Biennale. By end of 2011, funds raised were nearing the $350,000 target established for the project – testimony to the widespread support Migrating Landscapes within – and beyond – the profession.

A complete list of sponsors, donors and partners can be found at the end of this annual report.

Three Foundation scholarships joined as part of general account

After considerable deliberation, the RAIC Foundation Trustees consolidated the Gérard Venne Bursary, Michael J. Barstow Fund and Burwell Coon Travelling Scholarship into its general trust fund. The consolidation will streamline the Foundation's slate of bursaries to those that can be dispensed on a sustainable basis, while strengthening its capacity to meet its operational needs.

Arthur Buckwell Memorial Scholarship

The Arthur Buckwell Memorial Scholarship is awarded to a student at the School of Architecture of the University of Manitoba, who has, in the judgment of the faculty, shown distinction in design. The total value of this annual award is $1,500. The award was implemented in December 1993.

Following a request received from the Caretaker of the Buckwell Scholarship Fund and Power of Attorney for Ethne Buckwell, this fund was transferred to the University of Manitoba.
